

For 15 years, Jane Mitchell has delved into the hearts, minds and scrapbooks of more than 120 athletes from around the nation primarily for her TV show One on One. Her biographical story-telling and signature style have earned her international fans, respect from the sports world, and numerous awards including 27 Emmys. Remarkable accomplishments for someone who did not grow up a sports fan!

Jane's new book One on One is a collection of nearly 40 of Jane's most notable interviews including sports figures such as Tony Gwynn, Drew Brees, Dave Winfield, and Ted Williams.

Her passion about getting to know the athlete behind the uniform translates to inspiring and informative book talks, lectures and speaking engagements for fans, students, and corporate and community groups around the country.

Sports figures are recognized as heroes, icons, gladiators, tough guys made of steel. Jane shares what is at their core that elevates them to the national spotlight as they live their childhood dream. She translates the athletes' story to reveal how we can all learn from their journeys of triumph and tragedy, struggles and success, and apply their lessons to our own lives.

“Over the years, Jane Mitchell's work with contemporary and historical sports figures has been consistently thoughtful and well crafted. She blends a fan's passion with a reporter's curiosity and eye for detail.”

Bob Costas, National Sports Broadcaster

Beyond stories transcending a uniform, Jane takes her audience behind the scenes of being a woman reporter in a man's world, and her journey of risks and rewards including leaving an on-air position to help care for her father. Part of the book's proceeds go to the ALS Association in honor of her dad who died of Lou Gehrig's Disease. She also offers guidance and media coaching with “The Art of Heart and Soul Interviewing,” helpful for interviewers and interviewees in any profession.
